Dedication

Schools, the greatest institutions of learning known to mankind, are also our greatest heritage. This book is dedicated to an example of that idea, the new Gettysburg Area Senior High School. May we be proud of our heritage and honor it.

Administration

The members of the class of 1963 would like to express their appreciation to the faculty and administration for the guidance and understanding they have given to the students during their school years. They have given freely of their time to assist with extra-curricular activities and have offered sympathetic guidance in their programs and careers. We fully appreciate the patient instruction they have given us. This instruction will help us to lead better and more useful lives. The personal interest and inspiration they have given and shown to the students has meant a great deal.

MR. H. EDGAR RIEGLE

Familiar details of the American scene are taken for granted as though they always have been with us and always will be a part of our society. We take our schools for granted. The truth is that, in the early days of the United States, only a relatively few persons could get anything resembling the education we have available today. It took the imagination and great efforts of many people, many years to plan and develop our schools as they are today.

It did not take the settlers long to decide that a sound education was necessary. The Pilgrims in 1620 and the Puritans ten years later, faced numerous hardships: establishing homes; developing ways and means of feeding and clothing themselves, and protecting themselves from the dangers of the wilderness.

As soon as they felt secure in their surroundings, their thoughts turned toward education. In 1642 the colonial legislature of Massachusetts passed an act directing town officials to see that parents attended to the education of their children. This was a commendable and historically important action, for it was the first modest step toward two characteristics of our modern educational system: universal and compulsory education. The provisions of the Act of 1642 were merely the beginnings. Five years later, an Act was passed which required every town of 50 households to have a schoolmaster and to arrange for his pay. It also provided for every town of 100 households to establish a Latin grammar school to prepare boys for college.

The significance of these school laws was that the government had assumed the responsibility of directing and supporting the American schools. The idea about the importance of education in Massachusetts spread to other colonies. When the national Constitution went into effect in 1789, it created a democratic government. This new form of government created a new motive for general and universal education, that of general welfare.

A literate, informed citizenry became an obvious necessity. Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence, saw clearly the need for education for all and placed his trust for the preservation of hard-won liberty in the education of the common people. In the year 1816 he wrote, "If a nation expects to be ignorant and free in a state of civilization, it expects what never was and never will be . . . there is no safe deposit (for the functions of government) but with the people themselves; nor can they be safe with them without information."

We have inherited this most important institution from our forefathers. Today, our responsibility to ourselves and ensuing generations is to preserve our democratic form of government and our democratic way of life through a well informed citizenry.

—PROVERBS

Schools and education have been a part of every known civilization. Civilization grew and grew because of man's constant desire for improvement, and from the very beginning the people in Gettysburg supported education.

Education today is the accumulation of the past and present accomplishments of our society. It provides us with the requisites necessary to understand what we believe in, what we wish to work for, and what we seek to achieve. Education is more than learning—it is a way of life!

The door to freedom is unlocked by education, and because those before you at Gettysburg High School chose to keep it open, you must render the same to those who follow. You must continue to grow in respect for yourself and respect for others. You must give yourself the opportunity to improve your way of life and the way of life of others, and in this way each member of the graduating class of 1963 will contribute his accomplishments to the future of a society dependent upon him.

This is no simple task, but it is said that "he who tills his land will have plenty of bread, but he who follows worthless pursuits will have plenty of poverty."

CHARLES E. TRESSLER

CLIFFORD B. SNOWBERGER
Principal
Gettysburg Junior High School

Class of 1963, for twelve years you have taken part in a program in which you have been training to accept your place in our democratic society.

During those years you have learned of many historical events that have given more independence, freedom and justice for the individual citizen. Such events as the Magna Carta, religious reform by Roger Williams and William Penn, the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights were gained at great cost in time, expense and lives.

All these freedoms have been your heritage. But, you dare not sit idly by while others destroy the things you cherish. Some great nations of the past have deteriorated because of indolence, indifference and ignorance.

In our society we have a means of preserving and promoting these freedoms which were passed down to us. It is the American tradition to train all our citizens in these freedoms, regardless of wealth, race or creed.

The schools of America, our greatest heritage, provide knowledge, devotion and opportunity for each individual. Through our form of education basic freedoms are protected and advanced.

May you, the graduating class, lend your talents and services in the promotion and protection of our freedoms in a democratic society.

Building an educational foundation for the young American from his first day of school life until the eventful graduation twelve years hence, is the responsibility of every teacher, and indeed the job is being done quite well. In the elementary grade, the child is introduced to the basic fundamental skills of learning. He not only acquires academic skills, but he learns to live with others.

In junior high school the individual personality really begins to develop. Essentially, it is not enough to be able to read, solve a mathematical equation, or to display good penmanship. We must be meticulous in punctuality, earnest and sincere with fellow students and teachers, and resolute in our determination to make the best possible use of our God-given talents.

The school is our heritage, and education is the foundation for our greatness. We must build a solid foundation in elementary and junior high schools, so that it will be easier to complete the finishing touches in senior high school and college. It is then that we can measure our success and perceive the pride of self-accomplishment.

GUIDANCE COUNSELORS

The guidance counselors are the architects for our futures. They begin their work as we enter seventh grade by helping us to plan our schedules. Many of the students seek their help when deciding upon their careers as students find that the guidance counselors have an abundance of material on various professions. Miss Ramer and Mr. Tiziani also build the students' lives in a different way. They proctor preference tests as well as scholarship tests. Each year as the seniors graduate and choose their careers, the two counselors can see the results of their efforts. Their time and work is very much appreciated by all students and the senior class.

LIBRARIANS

What a quandary those two rooms filled with rows and rows of books would be without the indefatigable guidance of the librarians, Miss Susan Wentz and Miss Mary Fultz!

Their job is no small one, for there is plenty to do — checking in new books, repairing old ones, helping the students find reference material, issuing books, and numerous other odds and ends that are so vital to everyday school life. The library is a haven for students doing term papers, research projects, and special reports.

The librarians' secretary, Mrs. Marie Redding, is also a very busy person, keeping the files and records in order.

THE HEALTH COUNCIL

The Health Council is a group of students recently organized by Miss Ellen Miller, Gettysburg Senior High School Nurse. It has three functions: (1) to stimulate interest in matters of health, (2) to disseminate information on personal health, and (3) to take information to the homerooms concerning the activities of the School Health Service. In the past year, the council has helped in distributing information and informing students about the Junior physicals, the tetanus clinic, and the Sabin Sunday polio clinic.

Sufficient gratitude and thanks can hardly be given to our nurses, cafeteria staff, and janitors. The nurses direct the school health programs and provide treatment for sudden illnesses of students. Appetizing menus and nourishing meals display the efforts of the cafeteria staff. The janitors also show their work by our neat and clean schools.

Seniors

After twelve years of study, hard work, and extra-curricular activities the members of the class of 1963 have become well-rounded individuals. Looking back, they recall many pleasant memories; the past year having been their special one. As the students progress through life they will never forget the years spent at Gettysburg High School, our heritage.

OUR SCHOOL DAYS AT GETTYSBURG HIGH (1957-1963)

Five years have passed since we, the class of 1963, entered what was then Gettysburg Junior-Senior High School. Within this period of time, many experiences and educational opportunities have converted us from curious wide-eyed seventh graders to mature college or career-bound seniors.

In September, 1957, we started our school life as seventh graders in Gettysburg Junior High School. For the first time we experienced the use of student government to help solve school problems, the strange idea of moving to different classrooms for each subject, and the chance to see our athletic teams in action.

As eighth graders, we saw ourselves quickly adjusting to junior high life and gladly accepting the fact that we were no longer the youngest ones in the junior high school.

September, 1959, brought the class of '63 to the rank of ninth graders. Our last year in junior high school gave us the chance to look back on the three fall and spring dances of which we were a part, the athletic contests we attended, the great amount of learning which we comprehended in the junior high school, and the wonderful times we had making lasting friendships and acquaintances. The ninth grade year ended with the "junior high graduates" anxiously awaiting their entry into senior high school the following fall.

The fall of 1960 arrived and the class entered their sophomore year, the first of the three levels of senior high school life. Here we found our studies to be more abstruse and detailed with the idea of guiding us in the direction of a chosen goal and career. Athletic events, clubs, and studies kept us busy, but happy with our new-found high school life.

As the class of '63 entered their junior year, the pace of high school life stepped up. College and career conscious juniors began to consider choices of higher learning for further education. Others were deciding possible business and vocational occupations to take up after graduation. At the end of the year the class took over the jobs of editing the school newspaper, THE MAROON AND WHITE, and the yearbook, THE CANNON-AID. Many of the juniors took the college board examinations as practice for the college tests that were necessary in their senior year. The year finished with the Junior-Senior Prom, "Red Sails in the Sunset," a formal dance sponsored by the junior class.

With the opening of the 1962-63 school year, the class of '63 started their final year in senior high school. We were privileged to move into the newly-built Gettysburg Area High School in November and to become its first graduating class. The Fall Dance, "Stompin' at the Savoy," began the social activities of the class. The athletic seasons provided much excitement and fun for the coming graduates. The dances, plays, operetta, clubs, and other extra-curricular activities gave our class members a chance to reveal their hidden talents and abilities. The 1963 Spring Prom, the highlight of our senior year, left many unforgettable memories imprinted in the hearts and minds of the '63 graduates.

Now as we look back on our last five years of school life, we remember all the wonderful and memorable events and experiences that have taken place. Through our numerous mistakes we have learned many new lessons of life and friendship. The acquaintances which we made these past years will become lasting companionships. Our life in Gettysburg Junior High School and Gettysburg Area High School has helped to prepare us mentally, physically, and socially for the decisive step into the great complex world around us.

ADVISORS

Mrs. Pamela Kistler and Mr. Elmer Schriver

The past year has been a busy, but prosperous one for the Class of 1963, filled with many varied activities and highlighted by the moving into the new senior high school.

We, the senior class, have benefited from those who earnestly instructed us; from those who unselfishly gave of their time and talent; and from those who put forth their energies to make this class of 1963 a memorable one.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE STUDENTS

Russ greets our foreign exchange students.

The American Field Service Chapter of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, has sponsored this school year Ana Maria Silva from Guatemala and Mehmet Bayram from Gaziantep, Turkey.

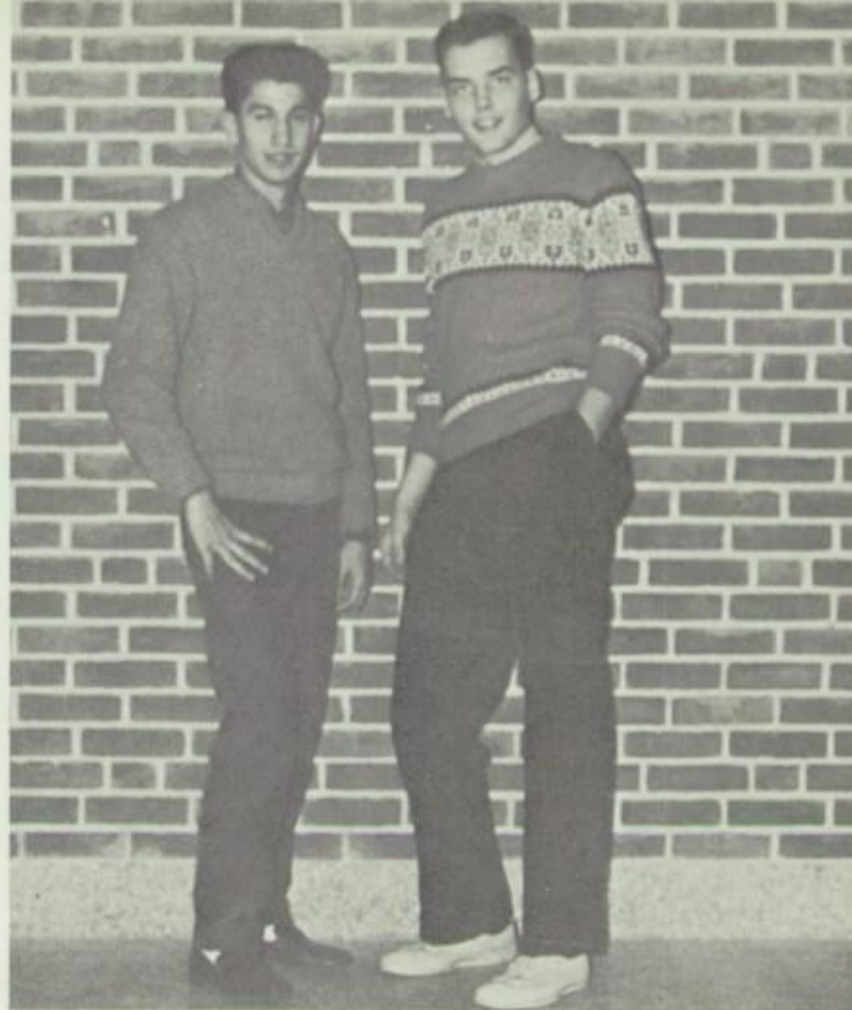

Arriving last August, they have lived with their American adopted family. At the end of June, they will take a three-week tour of parts of the United States before returning to their homeland.

A nonprofit, private, educational organization, the American Field Service promotes good will and understanding among the people of the world. The teen-age school exchange program was begun recently in 1957. Participating members of this organization number approximately fifty nations, ranging from Andorra to Vietnam.

The Exchange program is not only carried out by the school but by the community. The finance, homes and adjustment, Americans abroad, publicity and public relations, projects, and social committees are comprised of student, faculty, and community members.

When choosing Exchange students, American Field Service is quite selective. Candidates must be at least sixteen years old, a junior in high school, have completed two years of a foreign language, and meet scholastic, health, and personal requirements.

Mehmet Bayram, who resided with Ted Gilbert and his family, was the American Field Service student from Turkey. His sense of humor and quaint antics proved him intriguing to everyone he met.

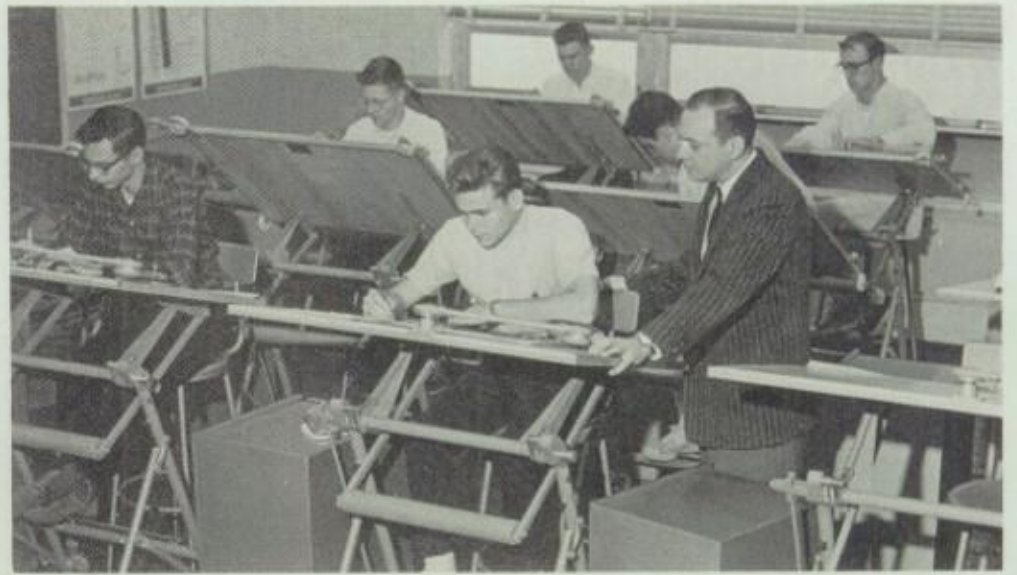

Ana Maria Silva, the exchange student from Guatemala, spent her senior year with Barbara Allison and her family. She has become readily adapted to the student's way of life in America and the peculiar customs which the American people possess.

Sigfrid Bock, the Swedish exchange student, has spent the current year living with Kit Richardson and his family. This quiet, blond boy's stay in America has helped him in pursuing his interests in philosophy, theology, and religion.

Underclassmen

The underclassmen of Gettysburg Area High School and Gettysburg Junior High School form a great part of the nucleus about which school life revolves. Their diligent efforts to put forth and achieve the highest possible goals are examples of the students' willingness to learn. Many of these students will become the future leaders of our schools, community, state and nation.

ADVISORS

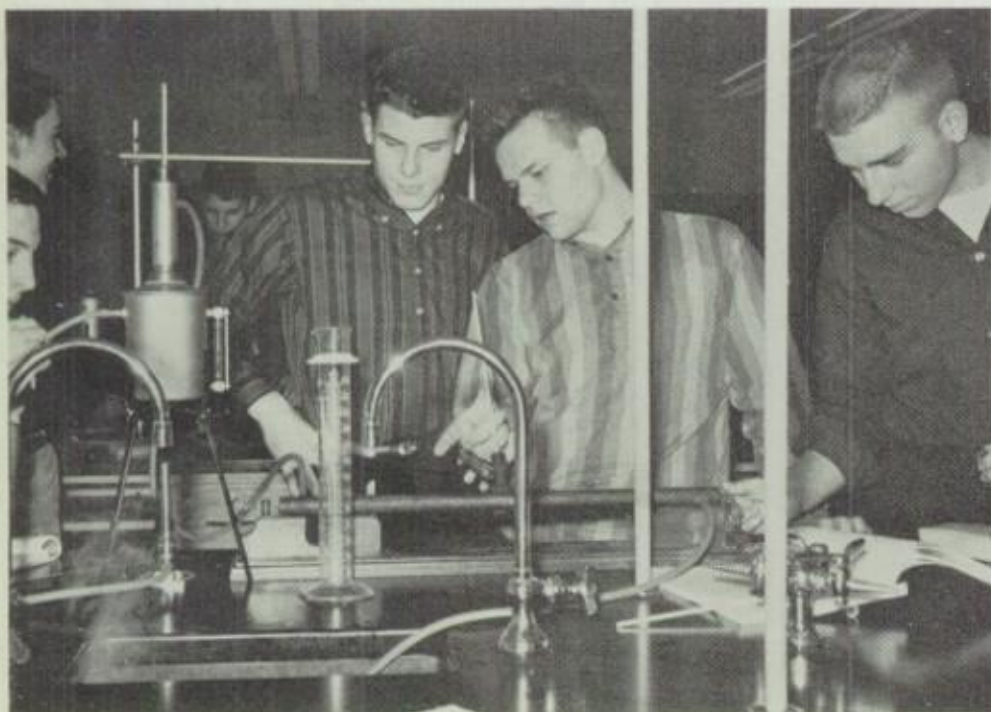

Miss Susan Wentz
and Mr. Edwin Longanecker

The junior class, once again displaying their eagerness to enter into school activities and contests, were leaders in most of the school's endeavors. With great perseverance, the juniors overwhelmingly defeated the seniors in the annual magazine drive. The class also set a record by contributing 25 per cent of the total funds received in the Charity Chest Drive. The juniors displayed their acting abilities in the junior-sophomore play, "Ask Any Girl," presented during Thanksgiving vacation. December arrived, and the juniors received their long-awaited class rings with much pride and joy. The beginning of the new year found the 11th graders worrying about mid-term examinations and making preliminary plans for the spring prom. The final social event of the year, the Junior-Senior Prom, found this class busily preparing to make their prom the best one ever given at the school.

Upon entering the senior high school, the sophomore class experienced a new atmosphere in relation to the requirements placed upon them. The tenth graders' devoted efforts contributed toward the overwhelming success of the junior-sophomore play, "Ask Any Girl." By accepting the many responsibilities bestowed upon them, the sophomores gave much depth to several of the school organizations.

FRESHMEN

The freshmen, supreme leaders of the junior high school, took their annual trip to the Adams County Courthouse as part of their studies in civics. The ninth graders decided what courses of study they would follow during their next three years in Gettysburg Area High School. They participated in many sports, the spring musical, and the junior high one-act plays. Presently their biggest desire is to move into the new senior high school next fall.

EIGHTH GRADE

The eighth grade of Gettysburg Junior High School helped to make this year very eventful. They participated in new activities and took new subjects to broaden their knowledge and enable them to become well-rounded students. The junior high one-act plays, the spring musical, and the junior high fall and spring dances were all part of their class activities.

SEVENTH GRADE

The seventh graders, the newest members of the secondary school system, found life very bewildering after their move from the Lincoln building to the junior high school. An integrated program constituted the nucleus of the seventh grade course of study. The students devoted half of their school day to a concentrated study in English and social studies. The other courses included art, mathematics, music, etc., which are necessary for a well-rounded education. An Eurasian dinner was held to help supplement the practical objectives of the social studies curriculum.

Activities

Gettysburg High School offers many opportunities to expand and cultivate the student's mind outside of classes. Various clubs and other school organizations aid the student in choosing a career, pursuing a hobby or just getting together with friends. Participating in these many activities can offer much satisfaction in personal achievement. CANNON-AID

Many hectic but enjoyable hours have been spent by the yearbook staff and advisors compiling your 1963 edition of the Cannon-Aid. Deadlines have been met, last minute details ironed out, and final pictures placed. It has not been easy gathering nicknames and secret ambitions, taking and retaking pictures, and composing captions.

The 1963 Cannon-Aid staff has truly enjoyed the hours of hard work. It is hoped that this yearbook brings many happy memories in the future years. For the seniors, this has been a memorable year filled with hopes and joys, disappointments, and problems. As we look through this book years from now, we will smile as these moments flash through our minds.

The Maroon and White staff labored hard this year to produce an interesting and educational school newspaper. Much time was spent making up assignment sheets, checking articles, writing headlines and proofreading. Each member of the staff had his own duties which had to be fulfilled for the success of the newspaper. The senior staff members can look back with pride upon the nine issues of the Maroon and White which they produced.

Many rushed but delightful hours were spent by the Maroon and White staff during the past year poring over dummy sheets, adding a couple of lines to the lead article on the front page, cutting two lines of the little article in the corner, or searching for exactly the right word to fit that 18 point tempo bold head. The efforts of these hours were rewarded when the Maroon and White achieved for the first time, the Keystone Award. This is the highest honor presented to a journalistic publication by the Pennsylvania School Press Association. The Maroon and White staff is composed of members who have prepared for their work on the paper, by taking one semester course in journalism during their junior year. This course is under the supervision of Mrs. Margaret Deitz, the faculty sponsor for the paper.

The Future Teachers of America is a national organization for senior high school students interested in the teaching field. Through the cadet teaching program of the club, the pupils can experience first hand, the ups and downs of the prospective careers. As a special project, the James Gettys Chapter has established a section in our school library on "teaching as a career."

Busy with the books!

"Pupils selected must show an interest in doing library work—there is responsibility as well as pleasure in the service." This is the basic requirement for the students who serve Gettysburg High School as library assistants. Included among their duties are charging materials, slipping books, preparing displays, and assisting the librarians in taking yearly inventory. If a librarian serves six years, he is awarded a book for his service.

Sports

The most popular extra-curricular activities in any high school are the sports. Whether a student backs his high school as a participant or as a supporter, sports play an important role in his academic life. Successful competition with other students, as well as with other schools, brings self-satisfaction to the player and promotes a healthy spirit throughout the school. The following pages will bring back memories of winning touchdowns, thrilling baskets, demanding gym classes, and G.A.A. activities.

Ron Plank picks up yardage for the Warriors.

Varsity Ends Good Season

The Gettysburg High School football team finished its first winning season since 1953 with a 6-3 record in the Blue Mountain League competition, with a unified effort of coaches and players.

The Warriors scored wins over Boiling Springs, Camp Hill, Susquenita, Northern, Newport, and Biglerville. Losses were to Shippensburg, East Pennsboro, and Big Spring. Westminster defeated the Warriors in a nonleague game.

Gettysburg's winning season was aided by fine players who were outstanding in the Blue Mountain League. John Longanecker, who served his first year as quarterback, sparked the Warriors to a winning season, including 13 touchdown passes and a .446 passing average, completing 62 of 139 passes.

Fine running by Joe Riley, Jim Newman, Ron Plank, Ken Kime, Larry Johnson, and Ron Miller combined to give Gettysburg a rushing yardage of almost 1,000 yards.

Ends Gary Nelson and Bob Beeler proved to be key players in the Warrior aerial offense. Nelson caught 20 passes for four touchdowns and Beeler scored three times in receiving 10 passes. Halfback Newman also scored four times in catching 13 throws.

With the Warriors' win over Biglerville, nine seniors played their last high school football game. These included Bob Beeler, Gary Nelson, Larry Helwig, Ed Zeigler, Ron Baker, Paul Plank, Steve Olson, Don Miller, and John Longanecker.

Coach Donald Young should be looking forward to another successful season in 1963 with fine running backs and a strong line.

Junior Varsity

The Gettysburg High School junior varsity football squad ended their season with a winless league record.

The little Warriors visited the Chambersburg jayvees in the first tilt. Chambersburg outran the home town squad in the first period which resulted in a 12-0 victory.

A second defeat occurred as the Bolts of Littlestown came to Gettysburg to seize an exciting 18-13 victory. The offensive units of both teams exhibited fine ground attacks.

The little Warriors dropped a third game at Biglerville as the Cannons racked up a 21-0 victory.

In the final game of the season, the jayvees equaled the Southwestern Mustangs in a 13-13 deadlock. After trailing by 13 points Coach Charles Lilley's jayvees bombed into the second half and tied the score.

Although the resulting winning column is empty, the season was not a failure. This year's jayvee squad has gained the necessary experience to produce an outstanding varsity team for the years to come.

Coach Donald Bickel's Braves opened their 1962 football season in September by dropping their first of six games to Chambersburg Faust. The Braves were handicapped by having only one letterman returning to lead the attack and subsequently yielded to Faust.

To combat against the loss, the Braves trounced the Cyclones of Waynesboro 20-0 to produce an equilibrium in the won-lost column. The superb aerial and ground offense awarded the Braves an easy victory.

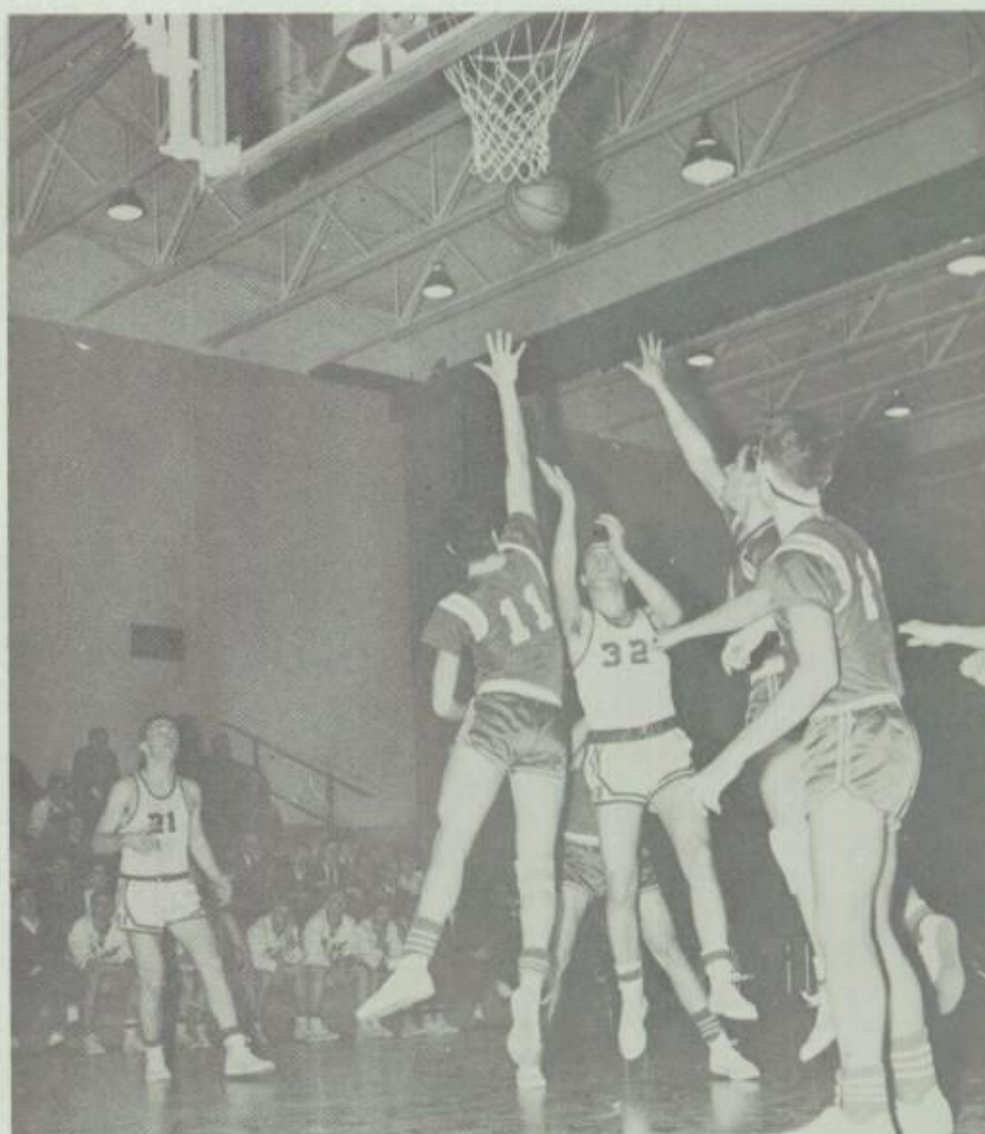

The next outing resulted in distress, when the Carlisle Bisons were able to outrun the Braves and acquire a 25-12 victory on the home field. This game seemed to set the pace for what became an undulating series of wins and losses with the junior Warriors taking the final game from Biglerville.

Through the excellent coaching and staff and the hard work contributed by the squad members, Gettysburg High School is again assured of success for the forthcoming season.

Gettysburg Ends Successful Season

The Gettysburg varsity basketball team came through with a fine season in their first year in Blue Mountain League competition. Compared to only one win in 1962, the Warriors displayed an overall record of 13-6 under the coaching of Mr. Merrill Eckhart who served as varsity coach for the first time. The Warriors were backed by four lettermen in John Longanecker, Bob Crandall, Gary Nelson, and Ed Zeigler. The varsity team was a close competitor for the first half champions until they were defeated by Camp Hill and Big Spring. The Warriors had hopes of winning the second half but bogged down midway through the remaining games. Gettysburg High should be looking forward to a good season in 1964.

Former Gettysburg High student, Mr. Earl Little, joined the coaching staff as he led the Junior Varsity to a 12-6 record. Backed by fine shooting on the part of Tony Bushey, Mike Krick, and Rad Schultz, the jayvees played good ball throughout most of the season. Most of these boys will be seeking a berth on the varsity squad next year.

First Row: O. Fissel, L. Shindlecker, B. Hinkle, W. Horner, M. Herring, R. Musselman, M. Simpson (manager).
Second Row: C. Raffensperger, B. Crandall, J. Shank, K. Richardson, D. Herring, G. Boring, R. Teeter.

Dennis Herring lays it up for the Braves.

JUNIOR HIGH BASKETBALL

Under the coaching of Mr. Donald Bickel, the Junior High Braves displayed a well-balanced attack on fine shooting by Dennis Herring and "Kit" Richardson. Wins over Waynesboro East, Waynesboro West and Littlestown gave the Braves a fine seasonal record.

Mr. Kadel's boys shoot for two.

Third Row: Mr. Kadel (coach), D. Bream, J. Allison, J. Cullison, D. Bream, L. White, M. Varian, T. Keckler.

TRACK AND FIELD

With spring's curtain having risen, the cindermen of newly crowned coach Pat Kelley are working hard in hopes of a successful season. Coach Kelley should not be confronted with too much difficulty in filling positions. Three lettermen are returning as well as several scrappers, who placed well but did not receive letters. The Blue Mountain League thus far has provided Gettysburg fans with fine records in football and basketball, and should continue to do so with the track squad possessing such a dexterous and proficient group of track candidates.

BASEBALL

Coach Young directs his players in an initial practice.

The eminent outcome of the 1963 baseball season can be derived from past records and present enthusiasm. With Coach Donald Young at the helm and four returning lettermen the possibility of a successful season is very promising. The Warriors enter a new league this year, The Adams-Franklin League, and will embark on a ten-game schedule.

The Warriors will have a rookie mound staff with John Longanecker and Tom Collins taking on the tenuous chores of pitching and filling the infield positions at shortstop and second base. Conway Bushey will hold down the "hot corner" while Ken Ketterman, Bruce Hartman, Tony Bushey, and Gary Nelson are other infield hopefuls. The outfield is without a vet, but holds great promise in Roy Fairman, Ron Plank, Gary Guise, and Don Miller.

The squad is happy to have Coach Hoffman to assist Coach Young in team training.

"It's great to be a member of G.A.A." This is a thought which all members of the Girls Athletic Association agree upon. There are many opportunities in G.A.A. from which the girls get much satisfaction. Besides participating in the sports of the season, the G.A.A. members are given an opportunity to learn new skills, to develop into better players, and to practice good sportsmanship.

During the year many varied sports are played. In the fall the major sport is hockey, followed by volleyball. In the spotlight during the winter season is basketball. And with the return of the warm weather, the G.A.A. females venture outside to play softball.

The girls receive points for participating in these sports events. The honor which all the girls hope to achieve is the major "G." To be eligible for this honor the girls must earn a certain number of points by participating in G.A.A. sponsored activities. The highest award which can be attained is the golden pin and is awarded annually to the senior girl who has acquired the most points throughout her high school career.

The Cannon-Aid staff, as well as the class of 1963, wish to express their thanks to the local businessmen and many private organizations who made this yearbook a reality by purchasing advertisements. Without their interest, it would have been impossible to have this yearbook as a memory of all the wonderful experiences at our school, our heritage.
